A Large Crowd Pollowed Her-When Arraigned in a Police Court the English Woman Said She Took to the Street Beenuse the Sidewalks Were Crowded

IN EIGHTH AVENUE.

It is so unusual to see a woman walk in the roadway on any of the streets of this city that a crowd of men and boys began to follow a striking-looking young woman at Eighth avesue and Twenty-third street, on Wednesday afternoon, when she stepped from the sidewalk into the street. The young woman paid no heed to the crowd, but kept on her way down town

The crowd increased before the woman had gone more than a block. Several wagons were in front and behind the young woman as she neared Nineteenth street. Policeman Churchill of the West Twentieth street station was on the corner, and he stepped out in the roadway to see what caused the crowd to collect. He could only see a tall, fair-haired young woman whom the crowd was intently gazing at. Churchill elbowed his way through the crowd and asked the young woman where she was going. She stared at him but did not reply, so the policeman put his hand on her arm and said to her:

"Madam, you are committing a breach of the peace in causing this crowd to follow you. What is the matter?"

There is nothing the matter with me, and you have no business to stop me," the young woman replied, with a pronounced English Churchill told her politely that she was violating the law in causing the crowd to follow her. The woman said she was not doing any thing unusual, and asked the policeman why he didn't disperse the crowd. Then she began to talk incoherently, and Churchill told her she would have to go to the station house.

She went along peaceably enough, but she was very indignant when she got to the station and learned she was under arrest. She paced up and down the station house floor, and denounced Churchill and said her arrest was an outrage. She refused to give her name or say anything about herself. She became so excited that she dropped one of the bundles she carried on the station house floor. The bundle broke open, and crullers rolled in all directions. As there is no matron at the West Twentieth street station, the young woman was transferred to the West Thirtieth street station, where she was locked up on a charge of disorderly conduct. After she had been in a cell a short time, she told the matron that she was Julie Besnard, 28 years old, of 107 Eighth avenue. She said she was an artist's model, and was employed by Henry Mosler, an artist, who has a studio in the Carnegie Music Hail building.

She spent the night in a cell, and yesterday morning was carried to Jefferson Market Court in a patrol wagon. Artist Mosler had heard of his model's arrest, and he came to court to interede for her. He spoke to Magistrate Crane about the young woman, but did not wait until she was arraigned. When she was brought before the Magistrate, she was still carrying a bundle in her arms, which, from the appearance of the paper, contained meat. The prisoner was rather strikingly dressed. She wore a bright red skirt and a red cape. Her hat was a large one. Her fluffy light hair was in contusion.

Policeman Churchill explained why he arrested her. He said there was a crowd of 500 persons following her at the time.

The young woman, when she began her story, was very excited and bitter toward the policeman who arrested her. Several times she called him "a well-fed beast." She said she had been nomes for Artist Mosler. And was on her way thing unusual, and asked the policeman why he didn't disperse the crowd. Then she began to was very excited and bitter toward the police-man who arrested her. Several times she called him "a well-fed beast." She said she had been posing for Artist Mosler, and was on her way home when arrested. Finding the sidewalk growded, she had gone into the roadway so that she could walk faster, as she was accustomed to to in England. She paid no heed to the crowd and was minding her own business when she was arrested. She didn't know she was violat-ing the law in collecting a crowd. After being advised to walk on the sidewalks in the future, the was discharged.

The young woman occupies a room in the bouse at 167 Eighth avenue. She has been there only a short time, and very little is known about her.

HER PIANO WAS OUT OF TUNE. Hallenbeck's Watch Dt with the Pinno Tuner.

Miss Jessie Hallenbeck of 337 West Twenty third street has a soprano voice which she fre ng a few days ago, and on Tuesday she visited an East Fourteenth street music store, and saked to have a man sent to tune the plane, Herman Ulrich of 839 Broadway, Brooklyn, was the man selected to do the work. He called on Miss Hallenbeck, looked at the plane, and said it was not only out of tune, but was badly in need of repairs, which it would take him an entire day to do. He went away promising to return.

A short time later Miss Hallenbeck missed her gold watch and chain, which had been on a manualpiece in the same room where the piano was. The singer waited for Ulrich to return, but he did not do so. Then she reported his visit and the loss of her watch to the police, and he was arrested. He told contradictory stories when he was arraigned in Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning, and was held in $1,000 bail for trial.

THE HOWARD ESTATE IN DISPUTE.

The Titles to Brooklyn Property Alleged to Be Defective.

Mrs. Mary A. Uhl has begun a suit in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn against President Ditmas Jewell of the Twenty-sixth Ward Bank to eject him from the possession of a piece of property in Williams avenue. If this contention is sustained, the titles of other pieces of property in the vicinity of the old Howard House in East New York will be rendered defective. TESTIMONY FOR SUPT. PIERCE. Boys Who Were Chained Were Able to Play Ball and Climb Trees,

At the continuance in White Plains yesterday of the investigation of charges of cruelty at the Temporary Home, the principal witness was William Schlobohm, the thirteen year old son of Alderman Schlobohm of Yonkers. The boy was committed to the Temporary Home for truancy, and he spent nearly three months ent Pierce had whipped him with the "cat." striking him twice on each hand. There was no blood drawn. He had seen ten other boys whipped, but none of them ever received more than four blows. He saw three boys chained separately, but in such a loose way that they were able to play ball and climb trees. He had never seen a child's mouth washed out with oil, but he knew of a case where a boy's mouth was washed out with water for profanity.

Superintendent Pierce's son had once made a complaint against some boys for disorderly conduct. The Superintendent made an investigation, and when he found that his own boy was to blame he nunished him. The children were well fed and well cared for, he said. The boy was very exact in his language, and he showed that he possessed a good memory for details. During a long and severe cross-examination lawyer Henderson was unable to confuse him, and when the boy left the stand there was a ripple of applause.

A former witness had testified that Henry Thomas, a colored inmate, was severely beaten with a horsewich by Mr. Henre and there the striking him twice on each hand. There was

A former witness had testified that Henry Thomas, a colored inmate, was severely beaten with a horsewhip by Mr. Pierce, and that the boy's thumb was broken during the operation. Thomas was put on the stand, and he swore that Mr. Pierce had never touched him with a horsewhip and that his thumb was never broken.

Mrs. Brown, who was laundress at the home for eight years, and Miss Dena R. Carter, who taught in the kindergarten, both testified in favor of the Superintendent.

LAWYER J. R. SMITH LOCKED UP.

Couldn't Pay the $5 Fine Imposed for an

Lawyer Joseph R. Smith, 65 years old, of 88 Barrow street, was fined $5 in Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning for assaulting his wife, Elizabeth. Smith is the man who had his wife arraigned in the same court several months ago on a charge of larceny. He said at that time that she had stolen $10 from his trousers pocket. Smith conducted the case against his pocket. Smith conducted the case against his wife, and made her account for every penny he had given her since they were married. The case against Mrs. Smith was dismissed.

The couple separated after this. Mrs. Smith on Wednesday visited a friend who lives in the same house as her husband. When she was leaving her friend's home she met her husband, and he, she says, assaulted her. Smith denied the assault and denounced his wife as a woman of loose habits. He didn't have the money to pay his fine, and was locked up.

CHICAGO CLOSING QUOTATIONS.

The interest of both the business and speculative communities in the foreign exchange market was revived to-day by a reported advance in the market price for American gold bars in London to 77s. 10d. This was promptly followed by an advance, ordered by the Treasury Department, of 16 of 1 % cent to 3-16 % cent in its price for Assay Office fine gold bars. The action of the Treasury resulted in a free of the condition and prospects of the foreign exchange market, particularly from the point of view of the principal draw-ers of bills. It is interesting to note that the bankers through whom foreign trade balances are settled do not regard the order of the Treasury, raising its price for fine gold bars, as an attempt to throw obstacles in the way of legitimate exports of specie; but rather as warranted by the difference between partment would furnish, and that of bars, if foreign exchange bankers. Besides, it is possiing the price for bars by the higher rate quoted for them in London.

As the drawers of foreign exchange prefer to make their calculations, if they involve possible shipments of specie, upon the commercial value of gold bars rather than upon coin, which varies in weight, they were gratified at to-day's action of the Treasury, because it enabled them to fix a basis for their operations for some time to come. This view is based that the Government is not likely to change Foreign bankers agree that they will not b compelled to make remittances in specie against their drawings until sight sterling touche $4.89%; and profits upon such transactions would be infinitesimal until the demand for sight exchange lifts the rate to $4.89% or

Prospects of shipments of specie are not as lent prospects of a diplomatic adjustment of the Venezuelan dispute, together with the virtual disposition of the Cuban question by to day's developments at Washington, have increased the disposition of foreign bankers to lend their money in this market. They are also tempted by the ruling rates for money here and the chances that those rates will exist as long as the Treasury can influence the money market by calling in from time to time $15,000,000 of the proceeds of the last bond issue, which it has on deposit with special depositary banks. The situation is complicated to an extent by the fact that a large amount of gold, used in making payments for the new Government bonds, was borrowed from abroad; but those who own that gold are not desirous of withdrawing it from this country if they can lend it here upon satisfactory terms. Excellent information is that tory, and that they are no longer disturbed by the possibility of unwise legislation in favor of SN world.s. 1734 should be an unforeseen reaction in the money market or a revival of foreign complications. No résumé of the foreign exchange situation would be complete that did not include the fact that there is now practically no short interest in that market, whereas a year ago foreign bankers were heavily short of exchange, because as members of the Government bond syndicate they were utilizing their resources to the utmost to supply an urgent demand for bills, with the view of averting exports of gold at a time when the syndicate was under obligations to the Government to import a large amount of the metal. Still another factor is, that imports of merchandise are decreasing and are likely to be on a smaller scale than heretofore, because of the contraction than heretofore, because of the contraction of Science 1 Science 1 Science 2 month, particularly during the last half of the month. It is possible, however, that these may be largely offset by a freer outward movement of cereals, for it is known that a large amount of wheat in elevators at Duluth and other lake ports has been sold for delivery abroad as soon
